

Saturday Night Healing Service (SNHS) pulled out a very successful Centennial "Rising Generations" concert at St. Timothy's October 1, 2011.

Many thanks to all those who lent their voices and skills and who pull it off, namely: the St. Timothy's Church Choir with maestro Norman; St. Timothy's Sunday School children with its teachers; TC3; Susan Grogan; the Fran sisters; the Kelletts with their fabulous "century aged" clothes, and Miriam, their daughter with her sweet voice; our very own Timothy Churchmouse, father and son, Kevin and Roman; Barbara Broadbent as Dorothy Scuse; Penny Laity; our former rectors Canon Harold and Bishop Patrick on Skype; our current incumbent Rev. John; and last but not least the indomitable SNHS choir.

I would be amiss if I left out our friends who helped with our silent auction, in making gifts, in preparing the fantastic array of goodies, as well as selling tickets. There were also those behind the scenes and part of the SNHS team who worked tirelessly to make sure the concert went smoothly.

All proceeds are planned to be of use to St. Timothy's.

I must thank our sponsors who supplied us with the yummy goodies. This list is not in any particular order. They are: Fahmee Bakery, Allan's Pastry Shop Ltd, Patty King, Juici Pattie, and All Occasion Creations. Do please support their businesses whenever possible.

Finally, the concert was blessed with countless, and anonymous donors who gave gifts and items for sale for the successful silent auction.
